

To whom it may concern at the Federal Communications Commission.
It would be a travesty if you allowed the NAB to outlaw a legitimate competitor to their business. As I understand it the reason the FCC was formed was to ensure competition within regulated industries.

XM radio is a valuable service which subscribers pay to have. Prior to XM there was no choice and now with XM we have it. The people are speaking. The NAB needs to find a more competitive way to challenge the competition not be outlawing it.

Services like instant weather and traffic are needed. Why should we wait until the NAB broadcasters want us to hear the traffic. XM offers what we need when we need it.

Respectfully Submitted,
Jonathan Piersol
Loyal XM Radio Listener